The Tyson Scholars Program offers the ideal opportunity to focus on research and writing, with first-hand access to American art and architecture.

The Tyson Scholars Program offers

- Free housing in a quiet, secluded residence near the museum
- Flexible scheduling: from six weeks to an academic year
- Stipends of $15,000 to $30,000 per semester
- Relocation allowance
- Access to the extensive art reference holdings of the Crystal Bridges Library and the University of Arkansas Libraries
- Access to the Crystal Bridges collection, which spans five centuries of American art
- New, short-term fellowship program coming soon!

Tyson Scholars are afforded work space in the curatorial wing of the Crystal Bridges Library, and work with museum curators and staff, as well as scholars from the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville.

The period of residency may be spent in active research, or dedicated to the completion of a dissertation or book manuscript. Scholars have opportunities to share their work with one another and with the public through lectures and gallery talks.

The Tyson Scholars program, established in 2012, supports scholarship in the full range of subjects related to American art and visual and material culture.

Crystal Bridges welcomes ambitious and cross-disciplinary projects in a variety of disciplines, including art history, architecture, visual culture, Indigenous art, American studies, and contemporary art. Applicants with innovative and genre-bending topics are encouraged and both pre- and post-doctoral candidates are eligible.

Crystal Bridges is located in Bentonville, Arkansas, in the beautiful Ozark Mountains. Scholars will be within easy reach of both the lively college-town nightlife of Fayetteville and the rugged natural beauty of the Buffalo National River and other parks. Bentonville is within a 5-hour drive of Dallas, St. Louis, and Memphis; and is 3 hours from Kansas City and Little Rock.

Apply for the 2019-2020 season in November and join a community of scholars at Crystal Bridges Museum of American Art.

Deadline to apply January 15, 2019
